Important Information

In the case of property you have found

You are entitled to claim found property if an owner is not located. The police service will attempt to locate an owner and if located you will hear nothing more about this matter. If after 60 days an owner has not been located, you will be advised you may make a claim for the property if you wish to do so. Once advised of when and how you may take delivery of the property, it will be held for a period of 14 days, after which it will be disposed of and you will not be able to claim.

In the case of property seized by police as evidence

If this receipt refers to property seized by police which may later be used as evidence, you have the right to have the evidence independently tested. If the police service undertakes any examination, testing or analysis, it is your right to have the same examination, test or analysis undertaken by an independent expert of your choosing. Any expenses incurred in the exercise of this right are your responsibility. Because some property may be disposed of or destroyed following, or as a result of examinations you are urged to pass this receipt to your legal representative. If you wish to exercise your right to independent testing, you or your legal representative should contact the officer in charge of the station to which the reporting officer is attached.

In the case of documents seized by police

If this receipt refers to property seized by police which consists of document(s), a person who would be entitled to the document(s) may inspect at any reasonable time and from time to time; and take extracts from or make copies of the document(s). In the case where the document(s) have been obtained by a production order, the addressee on the order may be provided with a certified copy on request. In certain circumstances, these requests may be refused by police under the provision of the Police Powers and Responsibilities Act 2000 (PPRA).

In the case of property where ownership is disputed

If this receipt refers to property in possession of the police for which more than one person claims ownership, an application will be made under the PPRA for an order concerning disposal. This application will be made under the PPRA, and you will be advised if this is to occur. You are urged to pass the matter to your legal representative if you receive such advice.

Notice

This is your official receipt for the property which was taken from you by a police officer recently. You will see that the property is described overleaf. If you consider the description shown on this form is incorrect, you should immediately contact the property officer or the officer in charge of the police station where the property is stored.

Privacy Collection Statement

The Queensland Police Service (QPS) is collecting your information for the purpose of recording and managing things in the possession of the QPS. The collection of this information is authorised by the Police Service Administration Act 1990 (Qld) and the Police Powers and Responsibilities Act 2000 (Qld). Otherwise the information you provide will not be used or disclosed without your consent unless such use or disclosure is authorised or required by law, including the Police Service Administration Act 1990 (Qld), the Police Powers and Responsibilities Act 2000 (Qld) and the Information Privacy Act 2009 (Qld). You have a right to access personal information that the QPS holds about you, subject to any exceptions in relevant legislation. If you wish to seek access to your personal information or inquire about the handling of your personal information, please contact PSBA Right to Information and Privacy by email at RTI@psba.qld.gov.au or by telephone 07 3364 4666.

Jim,

Here's a few pics from yesterday. The whole office here was full of firearms for a few hours while we lodged the firearms.
